

Dr. Sally E. Howe
Retired, Special Volunteer
National Library of Medicine

Sally Howe spent 12 years at NIST, 15 years at the NCO beginning with its 1992 creation, and 10 years at National Library of Medicine (NLM). She was editor then executive editor of the annual Supplements to the President's Budget for all but two of her NCO years.

At NLM, where the NCO was originally located, she built an NCO/HPCC archive for the Federal High-Performance Computing and Communications Program (predecessor to NITRD) and the NCO and wrote three blogs on the topic: High Performance Computing and Communications: Archived at NLM; HPCC Archived at NLM: Collaboration and Creation; and HPCC Archived at NLM: Evolution and Assessment.

She holds a Ph.D. in applied mathematics from Brown University.
