WSRD Workshop IX: Radio Receiver Systems: R&D Innovation Needs and Impacts on Technology and Policy

National Science Foundation, Washington, DC
May 5, 2017

Who Can Apply:

Academics or small business owners may qualify for travel support to the workshop. Priority will be given to academics. If there are any funds remaining they will be used to support non-academics. Travel support will be available from NSF, subject to the approval of the travel grant request.

Deadline to submit a request is May 19, 2017.

Categories of funding availability

- Local attendees: (local is defined as within 50 miles of the workshop venue) no funding available.
- Non-local attendees, who are not driving: $600 (based on an estimate of $200 for a 1-night hotel stay plus $400 for a flight/train)
- Non-local attendees who are driving: $250 (based on an estimate of $200 for a 1-night hotel stay plus $50 for driving-related expenses)

Confirmation of workshop attendance for entire day will be required. Sign-up sheets will be provided at the workshop site.

All travel support requests should be sent to Ms. Terry McGowan at tmcgowa2@gmu.edu following the workshop on May 5th and no later than May 19, 2017.
